Parenting Presentations

Taking the Stress Out of Parenting and Building Great Relationships with Your Children

When we handle parenting challenges in positive, effective ways, we build our relationships. We'll discuss setting effective limits, using discipline which teaches, responding with empathy and avoiding arguments.

Parenting the Digital Child: Setting Limits and Teaching Responsibility in a Connected World

The digital world gives children access to all sorts of information. How do you teach your children about the new responsibilities and potential dangers? What limits do you set? We'll discuss these questions & more!

Bringing Out Their Best: Providing Guidance While Avoiding Parenting Pitfalls

The way we approach parenting can help bring out the best in our children. We'll look at different parenting styles along with benefits and drawbacks. We'll discuss matching our style to our children's growing needs.

"Why Can't You Behave?": Ideas for Positively Handling Misbehavior

It is critical to develop effective parenting skills when your children are young. We'll discuss developmental challenges, setting a positive tone, strategies for handling misbehavior and setting firm limits in a kind way.

"Hey, Your Kid Just Hit My Kid!": Handling Conflict in Group Situations

When kids play together, there are bound to be conflicts. Some of the things we'll discuss include agreeing on unacceptable behavior, setting effective limits, enforcing rules and giving attention to positive behavior.

On the Bumpy Road to Independence: Guiding Teens to Becoming Responsible Adults

How do we balance trying to keep teens safe while also allowing them increasing freedom? How do we deal with teen attitude? We'll discuss helping our teens to grow into adults who can thrive on their own.
